

GUEST LECTURE

COORDINATION OF SOCIAL SECURITY SYSTEMS IN EUROPE

BY PROF. DR. ERIK HAHN
(ZITTAU/GÖRLITZ UNIVERSITY OF APPLIED SCIENCES)

The European internal market with its four basic freedoms is a central factor in the European integration process. Above all, the idea of free movement of persons can only be realized if a sufficient level of social security for cross-border work is ensured. At the European level, this is primarily achieved by coordinating the national social security systems. In the lecture, the coordination system and the most important principles of Regulation (EC) No. 883/2004 will be presented.

ABOUT THE SPEAKER:

Dr. Erik Hahn is a professor of law at the Zittau/Görlitz University of Applied Sciences, a permanent lecturer in a course of study at the International University Institute of the Technical University of Dresden, deputy director of the Görlitz University of Applied Sciences Institute for Health and Age, Work and Technology, co-director of the master's program "Medical Law" at Dresden International University and visiting professor at the Faculty of Law of Riga Stradiņš University. Before joining the University as a professor, Erik Hahn was a judge at a Social Court in Dresden. He passed his first and second state law exam in Saxony, holds a Doctor degree in Law from the University of Leipzig, a Doctor degree in Theoretical medicine from the Technical University of Dresden, and a Habilitated Doctor degree in Law from the Brandenburg Technical University of Cottbus-Senftenberg.
